

LEARN ABOUT AN EXCITING OPPORTUNITY FOR EASTERN COLORADO

Xcel Energy hosting public open houses to provide information and ask for input on Colorado's Power Pathway

Xcel Energy continues to make progress identifying potential locations for planned electric transmission lines and substations.

We've identified focus areas, smaller areas within each segment study area, where the transmission route and substation sites could be located. Please join us at one of our upcoming in-person public open houses to learn about our routing and siting progress and provide feedback. Project staff will be available to provide information about the potential locations for the proposed transmission lines and substations and answer questions about Colorado's Power Pathway. We want to hear from you about this important project and any issues we should consider in your area.

No formal presentation is planned, so please attend at any time during the open house. Information will also be posted at ColoradosPowerPathway.com and an electronic comment form is available if you are unable to attend a public open house (click on 'Contact Us' on the website to access).

ABOUT THE PROJECT

Colorado's Power Pathway is a proposal to build 345-kilovolt transmission lines in eastern Colorado. We estimate the system will cross more than a dozen counties and include:

- Approximately 560-650 miles of new high-voltage transmission infrastructure
- Four new and four expanded substations
- If approved, construction could begin in 2023 and the first transmission segments could be in service in 2025, with other segments completed in 2026 and 2027
